IMF States Trinidad and Tobago not in a Crisis

According to a release from the IMF dated March 17, 2016 headlined “IMF Completes 2016 Article IV Mission to Trinidad and Tobago”, Trinidad and Tobago is not in a crisis. The release states:

“Trinidad and Tobago’s economy is confronting a major shock with the sharp fall in energy prices that accelerated through early 2016...”

“Despite the great challenges posed by the need to adjust to energy prices, Trinidad and Tobago still has enormous strengths, including a well-educated work force and a stable political system. With substantial financial buffers and low, albeit rising levels of public debt, Trinidad and Tobago is not in a crisis...”

The Minister of Finance noted that the IMF mission recognised that Government has taken effective measures to combat the economic situation. As stated in the IMF release:

“The new Government agrees that policy adjustments are needed. Since assuming office six months ago, the Government has already taken some difficult but necessary steps in the face of sharply lower energy revenues, including widening the VAT tax base, cutting fuel subsidies, reducing the number of Ministries with a view to streamlining the civil service, and instituting spending cuts...”

“The Government has already identified additional measures that could meet some portion of this, including improving tax collections (with the help of a unified revenue authority), increasing gaming taxes and reintroducing property taxation...”

Chairmanship of NGC and Subsidiaries

The Minister of Finance described as “mischievous” statements made by the Leader of the Opposition regarding the appointment of Mr. Gerry Brooks as Chairman of the National Gas Company (NGC) and its subsidiaries. The Minister stated that this was not a new practice and was done under previous administrations. Specifically in the case of NGC, the company required strong leadership to rectify the current issues which include the failed Beetham Water Treatment Plant and the drastic reduction in revenues.

The Minister explained that Government will be reviewing the practice of one person chairing a company board and subsidiaries of the same company at the same time. Government will be reviewing the appropriateness of this long-standing practice and making recommendations as to whether or not it should be continued.
