PUBLIC ADVISORY

TREASURY DIVISION OPERATIONS RESTORED FOLLOWING ELECTRICAL DISRUPTION

The Treasury Division wishes to advise the public that an electrical issue involving a blown transformer affected its technical infrastructure on Friday 25th September, 2026, resulting in damage to certain equipment and a temporary disruption of critical services, including the encashment of Government cheques.

Technical professionals have been working continuously to address the issue and have made significant progress in restoring the affected systems. Service capability has been restored and customers are now able to conduct transactions.

As a precautionary measure, real-time monitoring of the system will continue to ensure its stability, reliability and the integrity of transactions. Technical professionals remain actively engaged and are prepared to respond immediately should any further issues arise.

The Treasury Division assures the public that the matter continues to receive the highest priority and that all necessary measures are being undertaken to maintain continuity of service and minimise any further inconvenience.

The Division sincerely appreciates the patience and understanding of its customers during this period.
